WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—For this section cloudy, showers tonight and probably tomorrow. Saturday: lower temperature, light southerly winds, becoming westerly.

THE ELECTION yesterday resulted as most people pressed it would—in the triumph of re-election of Mr. George L. Simpson as Mayor and the absolute defeat of independent candidate. The season has not been propitious for potato bugs ticks for many years—not since 1876, and then it was short-lived. Such movements may be compared to comets—they come and go at very long intervals; or the convulsion which begot the potato bugs of that year may be likened unto the cyclical a score of years later—nothing like it had occurred here before and probably never will. At any rate, the conditions yesterday were not favorable for a political convulsion. Outside of the Second ward, where the disturbance was central, the atmosphere was serene; and even in the home of the independent candidate the vortex was not dangerous.

As stated yesterday, most of the day was marked by quietness. While there was a steady deposit of ballots, there was no stampeding, crowding or undue excitement until late in the evening, when the workshops began to disgorge voters, most of whom went to the polls before they took supper. As the sun began to sink behind the western hills and the minutes grew more precious the crowds around the polls became denser. Vehicles were running in every direction and earnest endeavors were being made to gather up all stragglers, which included numbers who had posed as purchasable during most of the day in anticipation of a rise in the price of votes.

The market, however, opened dull, continued inanimate and was weak and drooping as the day grew older. In fact, when such characters finally approached the polls the bottom was known to be out and the market glutted with tickets bearing the names of the nominees of the democratic primary. The disappointed ones, however, managed to procure a drink or two out of the smash-up.

While it was conceded by all that the democratic nominees were elected by large majorities, there was curiosity manifest to hear the actual results proclaimed, and shortly after dark the streets began to teem with people, most of whom went on King street and remained at certain localities where it was known the result would be announced. The first ward soon sent in its returns. It was a solid shot and dispelled all hopes of the opposition. Mr. Simpson had received 293 votes and Mr. Beach 116. Later the Second ward announced Simpson 187, Beach 199. There was a faint manifestation of applause on Royal street, which was immediately drowned by a Columbian from the Friendship precinct of the Third ward, where Mr. Simpson had polled 371 and Mr. Beach 79. Hardly had the smoke cleared when a broadside from the Court House precinct of the same ward annihilated all further hopes of the friends of the independent candidate by announcing that Mr. Simpson had received 366, and Mr. Beach 280. The coup de grace finally came when the landslide in the Fourth ward was precipitated. The cold figures were: Simpson 567, Beach 147. The former had polled 1,784 votes and the latter 821. Mr. Simpson had been elected by 963 majority.

There were but two other instances where independents were in evidence. Horace Swain was after Alderman J. T. Sweeney's scalp, and Frank Evans, at present a member of the Common Council, was an independent candidate for re-election. The first named went into an eclipse early in the day and Mr. Evans met a similar fate later in the night when he realized his services were dispensed with, though he received a most complimentary vote.

Colonel Smith, candidate for the constitutional convention, had an opponent in the person of Edward McGee. In the contest he generally lagged out of sight entirely. In the First ward 39 individuals made McGee their choice, 256 in two precincts of the Third ward (mostly grocers) performed similar acts, and 200 denizens of the Fourth ward followed their example. Col. Smith's majority is 1,361.

The following gentlemen—all nominees of the democratic primary—were elected:

For Mayor, Geo. L. Simpson; Auditor, E. F. Price; Clerk of Gas, Samuel L. Monroe; Collector of Taxes, P. F. Gorman; Corporation Attorney, Gardner L. Boothe; Messenger of Lumber, James L. Adams; Messenger of Wood and Bark, Chas. Goodrich.

CONFEDERATE MEMORIAL DAY.—The programme of the Confederate Memorial services, published in yesterday's Gazette, will be carried out today in all its features. The weather, which had been uncertain during the first part of the day, cleared in the afternoon and everything became propitious for the occasion. A number of strangers are in the city, as is always the case on Confederate memorial day. The public schools were closed in the afternoon in order to give the teachers and scholars an opportunity to see the parade and attend the services at the Monument and in Christ Church yard. This morning the graves of the Confederates in the various cemeteries were strewn with flowers and during the day the monument on Washington street and the mound in Christ church yard were beautifully decorated with flowers.

ENTERTAINMENT.—The entertainment given at the Baptist Church last night by the Young People's Union of that church was a success in every particular. The proceeds will go towards furnishing a carpet for the floor of the Sunday-school department. The different numbers on the programme were creditably performed and elicited much applause. Besides the talent from this city, several were present from Washington. All departed seemingly well satisfied with the entertainment, for which the committee who had it in charge are to be complimented.
